For many, cards, flowers and jewelry are go-to purchases for Valentine's Day. But now more than ever, couples are upping the ante — opting for more experiential gifts, such as spa days or getaways.

In fact, Americans spent $3.6 billion dollars in 2015 on travel and entertainment for the February 14th holiday, and that figure is expected to rise this year.

So it seems that the best way to win your loved one's heart is to take them on vacation.

With that in mind, Yahoo Travel has put together a list of romantic getaways, perfect for whisking your loved one off their feet. But book now, Valentines day is just around the corner.
