

Last-Minute Mother's Day Ideas For Seattleites

Our picks for the best Mother's Day around Washington

written by Kevin Max

For guys (like me) who have waited 'til the last minute and still want to pull off a Mother's Day that looks like you've planned this for weeks (because, she's worth it) don't worry—we've got you covered. Here are some themes and ideas for every budget. But don't dither. Click these links and get this one in the books.

Mini Getaways- Mother's Day – Seattle

Getting Love to spa is one thing—whisking her into the woods for a destination spa day is another. Here are two ways to escape for the Mother's Day weekend. Surprise her with a drive out to Alderbrook Resort & Spa on the southern tip of the Hood Canal. Go overboard with the Queen's Picnic, with caviar and mimosas aboard a private yacht ($95).

Salish Lodge overlooking Snoqualmie Falls.

Naturally, nature is the best muscle relaxant. Find lots of it at Salish Lodge & Spa overlooking the mesmerizing cascade of water spilling over Snoqualmie Falls. Just 30 miles outside of town, Salish Lodge is a different world and one with a spa and romance concierge. Dr. Pepper Schwartz, a world-renowned love expert, can help you craft something out of the ordinary for an amorous weekend. (Rooms $280-$479).